CRAWFORD RANGE MAKERS

Walker & Pratt Manufacturing Company Building Addition to Plant.

The Walker & Pratt Manufacturing company, makers of Crawford cooking ranges, whose foundry and works are at Watertown, is building an extension to its plant which will add one-third to its capacity for output. This is the fourth enlargement of this plant within ten years, made necessary by the increasing demand for the product.

This increase is due in a large measure to the strong newspaper advertising which the goods have been given. The company has been established 50 years and its reputation and that of its products has always been of the highest; a good foundation for advertising to build on.

BROADWAY THEATER.

"Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm."

The attraction at the Broadway the The attraction at the Broadway thester Wednesday afternoon and evening, March 23d, will be Klaw and Erlanger's production of "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm," which comes here from a highly successful run of nine weeks at the Tremont theater, Boston.
Kate Douglas Wiegin's little heroine as portrayed by Edith Talaiferro has proved/an irresistible attraction, and not only the thousands who have read the book, but many other thousands are anxious to see the dramatic version of what is the most populer novel of the decade.

ebecca does not contain a sugges-line and it is not a problem play tive line and it is not a problem play. It is a simple story as pure and sweet as the atmosphere in which the scene is laid. Another point in which Rebecca differs materially from the so-called rural play is that although many bucolic characters are introduced, they are not of the stage type. Mrs. Wiggin has presented them for the first time as they really are and has not carlcatured them, but it is not the rural quality in Rebecca that makes her so successful, it is the reminiscent chord she strikes in every heart.

BREED THEATER.

Superb Bill of Thrilling Motion Pic-

Conspicuous among the many excellent motion pictures shown at the Breed theater last evening, was the great western picture entitled The Chris of the Ranch, a thoroughly wild Girls of the Ranch, a thoroughly wild west picture, and one that is filled with grand scenery that is representative of the truly golden west. The powerful story of the two girls that are abducted by the cowooys and carried to the isolated cabin, and afterwards taken from the villains by a posse under the guidance of the girls' father, after a fierce encounter. The story is a very complete one, and is replete with dramatic situations that are apily portrayed by the excellent characters.

One of the best Biograph pictures of the season is entitled The Final Settlement, and is a thrilling romance of the Canadian woods. The plot is a complicated one, and carries the audience by its interesting quality, bordering somewhat on the melodramatic order, and is unusually powerful for a and is unusually powerful for a der, and is unusually powerful for a motion picture.

The finishing touches have been put upon the walls, the decorators having completed their work yesterday. A soft shade of sage green is applied to the wainscoting, with a lighter shade above and an attractive stencil border between. The admiration for the improvements is universal, and it is now provements is universal, and it is now one of the neatest theaters in the city. Mr. Charles Ray made a hit with his two kongs, entitled, "You're for Me," and "Candy, You're a Dandy."

BOY'S RUSSIAN SUIT. Paris Pattern No. 3216 - All Seam

Bine and white Scotch gingham in combination with white linen is used for the stylish suit for little lads as here pictured, buttons of polished blue horn giving a little touch of decoration. The suit consists of a blouse with a very becoming panel front, a deep sailor collar and sleeves which may be box-platted to cun depth, or finished with gathers and wristband, and knickerbockers having the fullness at the knae confined by elastic-run casing. Especially adaptable to wash material, such as linen, crash, galatea, gingham, duck, chambray and percale, this design may also be developed in serge, mohair, flannel, cheviot and cloth.

The pattern is in four sizes—2 to 5 years. For a boy of 3 years the suit requires as illustrated 1½ yards of checked material 27 inches wide, with Wyard of plain material 36 Inches wide, or of one material throughout 2% yards 36 Inches wide.

Price of pattern, 10 cents. Be sure and give accurate measurements.

SHADY NOOK FARM. Karl Bishop Succeeds the Late Robert

It is known far and near among poultry fanciers that the late Robert C. Tuttle (who was killed in Rockville recently) when his automobile was run recently) when his automobile was run down by a trolley car) had the lead in his particular line of poultry—Rhode Island Reds— and had been accounted one of the best judges in the country. He had sold birds at fabulous prices and eggs from his selected mating have been sold as high as $25 a dozen. Now the Tuttle plant has passed into the control of Karl F. Bishop, of Hartford.

Some idea of the popularity of the of Hartford.

Some idea of the popularity of the Tuttle Rose Comb Rhode Island Reds may be gained from the fact that few more than 100 of the little state's holdings were sold for a lump sum of $2.500! Mr. Bishop has added to his holdings several family lots that have produced prize, winners, Mr. Bishop's wife is a sister of Mrs. R. C. Tuttle.

MISS M'FLIMSEY AGAIN.

Miss Flora McFlimsey, of whom you have heard,
Has made one more journey to Paris,
And she has come back just as blithe
as a bird,
Or so says her friend, Mrs. Harris;
And Flora no more her sad fate is bewalling.—
She worries no whit o'er the gown she is trailing:
She loses no steep over boas and
shawis,
Nor dresses for breakfast and dinners
and balls,
Nor dresses for autoing, goifing and sich,
Not a rap does she worry o'er basting
of stitch
Of all the fine duds that once caused
her such woe,
For she's brought home a hat that itself is a show;
It is plain to be seen that this wondrous lid useter
Belong to the swellest and vainest old rooster
That scratched up the barnyard and crowed at the dawn;
"It's a Chantecler lid just as sure as you're bawn," Whispers awed Mrs. Harris, in telling her friends;
"Rostand makes it himself—yes, he does, and he sends
It to Mistress McFlimsey to wear oveg
here—
She dons it tomorrow—provided it's She dons it tomorrow—provided it's clear."
So Mistress McFlimsey is happy at So Mistress McFlimsey is happy at last;
Contentment is hers, as she sails proudly past
With the king of the barnyard aton of her head,
E'en to long, trailing feathers and comb of bright'red;
He is dead—but he died in a cause that is glorious,
So slience the sneer and the comment censorious,
For Flora McFlimsey of Madison Equare
No longer complains that she's nothing to wear.

THE BURDEN OF THE TEARS.

I saw a baffled angel newly dead Climb the first hill of Heaven with tedlous tread— Climb the long road of roses ever stirred By the delicate warble of a hidden bird. Light went a thousand angels toward the sun, But a huge burden held the baffled

"O angel, come so lately to this star, What is the load within your heavy jar?"
She answered, "Ah, the dead are not all free: One fetter of the old Earth hinders One fetter of the old Earth hinders me;
The loved ones mourn me back in the world of years,
And I am doomed to bear their foolish tears. The pilgrim staff is withered in my By sighs that follow me from life's old -Edwin Markham, in April Nautilus.
